ARCHITECTURAL SOCIETY OF NORTH-AMPTON.—This society will hold its spring meeting this year at Stamford, on Wednesday, May 22nd, in conjunction with the Lincolnshire Architectural Society. Among other papers, one on painted glass by Sir Charles Anderson, Bart., has been promised, and one on the churches of Stamford, by the Rev. G. A. Poole.

* The names of those who are entitled to proof engravings, &c., may be learnt at the Art-Union office.

IRON GATES IN THE CHURCH OF NOTRE DAME, BRUGES.

A LEGEND on the foot of these folding gates informs us that they were made by one Ryckam, of Ostend, in the year 1699. For delicacy of execution they are surpassed by few similar works in iron. Our engraving is from an accurate drawing made by Mons. Rudd, architect, of the city of Bruges. This gentleman has been for some years occupied in preparing a publication illustrative of the works of ornamental art existing in Bruges, to be engraved in outline, but hitherto his professional occupation has impeded its completion.

The Church of Notre Dame, where this fine pair of gates form the entrance to the choir behind the high altar, is renowned for containing the magnificent monuments of Charles the
